

Candidate Self Screening

Gain a competitive advantage and place yourself ahead of others

Resumé Check helps proactive job seekers keen to impress potential employers with their credentials and eligibility. Candidate Self Screening is a worthwhile investment as it allows an employer to make a recruitment decision quickly.

Self screening enables you to put yourself ahead of others in the job market and emphasises your initiative, honesty and integrity to potential employers. It also shows that you are serious about securing a position by investing in yourself and provides proof that your CV is accurate and your background is clear.

Resumé Check is New Zealand's leading and most recognised background screening specialist. Many New Zealand companies make it mandatory to background screen employees before a job offer is made. By using Resumé Check's Self Screening service, these New Zealand companies will recognise Resumé Check and be more confident about employing you.

New Zealand employers are not immune to CV fraud, with 39% to 42% of CV's producing an inconsistency. By Self Screening you will impress potential employers with your credentials and eligibility, save your potential employer time and money and give the employer the confidence to employ you.

What are the benefits of Self Screening?

By using Resumé Check's independent professional verification service, you provide impartial confirmation of your credentials to the employer, thereby encouraging them to review your application more favourably.

Many New Zealand employers hesitate to employ people from overseas or those who are returning home because they find it difficult to verify your background. Therefore, they choose the risk adverse option of employing a local individual that they know or can easily screen.

You can gain your competitive advantage in the job market by making use of Candidate Self Screening service, which includes international screening. If you are new to New Zealand or have been living and working overseas, we can provide international screening via our extensive networking of screening partners.

What do I get out of it?

A report from the most recognised pre employment screening company in New Zealand documenting your verified credentials. This report can be attached to your job application.

A unique password for your employer to verify your report independently.
